To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to express my grave concern over the proposed 10 year plan for the United States Postal Service. Our postal service has always enjoyed a reputation for dependability and competence, but this reputation, sadly, was brought into question during the fiasco last fall which was initiated by Louis Dejoy in an attempt to affect the mail-in voting for our national election. His orders to destroy needed and efficient machinery, reduce working hours, and generally slow down the mails caused a great deal of worry, not only in my own family but across the country.

The 10 year plan which he has proposed does not alleviate this concern. Aware of Mr. Dejoy's pre-government business ties, it is difficult not to wonder what his long-term goal really is.

I am supportive of the postal workers who have continued to be diligent and hard-working for the American public. Perhaps a long-term plan is necessary for the postal service, but it should be developed by knowledgeable individuals familiar with the history, goals, and importance of the postal service who would have no vested interest in the outcome.

Thank you for considering these concerns.

Sincerely,

Deborah A. Andrews
